EXTENSION PROPOSED TO DOUBLE AREA OF PROVINCE ASKED

He Proposes New Lines For Alberta

three areas. It would include the Fort Norman oil field and the great fur-bearing and fishing areas of the north.

QUIET INQUIRY

"An investigation which has been quietly carried on by the Alberta Liberal party during the past two years shows that a move of this kind would not only be extremely valuable to Alberta as a province, but that it would meet with the approval of the people resident in the north. At present the North West Territories are administered from Ottawa and the people of the north feel that they should have some representation in parliament and that if they were made part of Alberta they could get that representation and, as a result, the country could be developed much more rapidly than it can be at present," said Mr. Howson.

Commenting on the investigation, he stated that while it had been difficult to obtain exact figures covering the present revenues from the areas concerned, those that had been obtained clearly indicate the great advantages to Alberta by having within its confines this immensely valuable hinterland.

"Alberta must seek new sources of revenue, and our present population cannot be asked to carry even the present burden," he said. "Our people are now taxed beyond their ability to pay and a broader view of Alberta's possibilities must be taken if a government is to obtain relief for our Alberta people."

"The little attention has been paid to the tremendous possibilities of the north country, and interviews with mining men and others who have come in from the north in the last few months will satisfy anyone that we are not yet awake to the great benefits to this province that can be derived by a move such as I have outlined."

"The big mining companies and other big organizations have not been slow to see the northern possibilities, but our own governing authorities appear to lack the foresight that will give our people a chance in the future, and it is our policy to provide that chance."

NORTH TO GULF

Under the proposed extension the present boundary between Saskatchewan and Alberta would be extended north to Dinosaur Harbor on the Coronation Gulf, and thence north and west along Coronation Gulf and Amundsen Gulf to the Arctic Ocean to Deception Sound, the boundary of Alaska.

In addition to the great mineral areas which have so far not even been scratched it would take in one of the finest fur-bearing areas in the world and also an area in which lakes abound teeming with millions of tons of the finest fish in the world. So far the fishing industry of the north has never been developed in any manner whatever.

NOISE ATTENTION

"Some will doubtless say that the Liberal party need not go so far afield to assist in development," said Mr. Howson, in commenting on the magnitude of his proposal. "That is quite true."

"The Fort McMurray area has not had half the attention it should have been given and will be given under a Liberal administration, but that need not stop us from going ahead with the proposal I have outlined."

"If the boundaries of the province are extended and if the natural resources of Alberta are vigorously developed in the interests of the people of Alberta, which is our aim, we can become the richest province in the Dominion and will not long remain tax-paying slaves as we now are."

INSULT GIVEN BIG DIVIDEND

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The Corporation Securities company, in which investors lost $100,000,000, paid Samuel Insull $25,000 in cash dividends. The Insull mail fraud jury was told Friday.

As another sensational touch to their case against the Chicago utility executive, prosecutors produced evidence that he and other directors voted one of the dividends on Nov. 2, 1931, with $53,339 going to 11 of the men on trial 2½ months after the corporation became insolvent, according to earlier testimony.

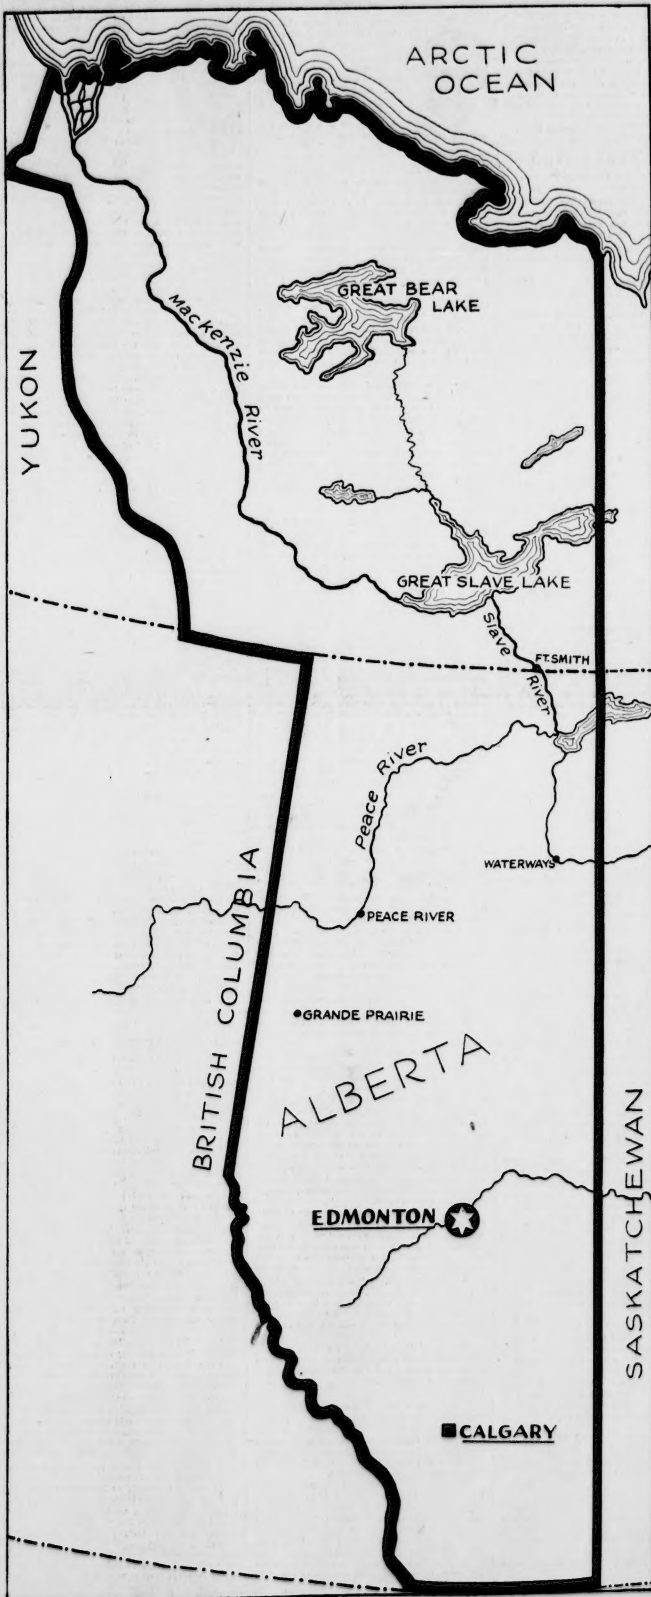

A result is spending the week-end in the cells even before they come up for trial.

Embushed and killed in a fight between militant Catholic elements and local authorities near Tashuato, Michigan.

The ambuscade, deputies were told, was arranged by a religious faction.

It was reported that seven soldiers, an army officer, a municipal councilman and six civilians were killed in the encounter. It was alleged they were enticed into the ambush by a group of religious demonstrators they were pursuing.

GARDINER HUNTS DATA FOR STATE MEDICINE PLAN

Municipal Delegation So Informed When Govt. at Regina is Interviewed on Subject.

REGINA, Oct. 27.—The Saskatchewan government is investigating the feasibility and advisability of establishing a system of state hospitalization and medical services, a delegation of the Saskatchewan Urban Municipal Association was advised when they submitted to resolutions to the government Thursday.

"We are already committed to such an investigation and we have already commenced securing data," Premier Gardiner told the delegation. The resolution passed at the urban convention asks for such an inquiry to acquire for the people of the province with the anticipated benefits, the expected cost and the manner in which such a scheme could be financed.

The delegation was also advised that their request for a commission to investigate the incidence of municipal taxation with a view to more equitable distribution is being considered by the government.

BURY HOPEFUL

A U. G. Bury member for East Edmonton, said: "Until I know the particulars I cannot express any opinion except regret at his loss. I cannot believe for a moment he will join the C.P. party and I am convinced he will not leave the Conservative party."

"It may be that as a private member he feels he will be free to advocate his views while still a member of the party. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain has been known to resign to free to advocate his views while still a member of the party."

J. A. Buchanan, organizer for the Conservative party, said: "If Mr. Stevens did make an error in judgment from the point of view of ethics, it was because of his enthusiasm to help the common people. There is no doubt he has been impatient to achieve results more rapidly than usually accomplished through governmental slow moving channels."

"Although there may have been a breath of ethics, which I am not prepared to admit, no actual harm has been done. In the end the result will be the same. The investigation will go on and the report acted on in the same manner as if Mr. Stevens had said nothing up to the present."

Even if it is a fact that he is out of the cabinet, Stevens owes him a debt of gratitude for the work he has accomplished up to the present.

SAYS REGRETTABLE
General W. A. Griehsman, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., former Conservative M.P. and Senator, said: "I had the following comment to make:

"It is regrettable that Mr. Stevens has tendered his resignation. He was a born, active and aggressive minister and it is a pity the government will lose him."

"On the other hand, he was guilty of indiscretion in taking up the position of judge and prosecutor before the price spread committee. He was not a judge and he could not but otherwise forfeit his usefulness on that committee."

"The work can be carried forward without him on the committee in the spirit of equity without any suggestion of underling influence and will ultimately enable the government to carry the enquiry through to legislative remedies of the abuses exposed by the commission."

streets the provincial party leader, D. M. Duggan, was asked to call an informal meeting of party supporters to demand the resignation of Mr. Stevens.

The Alberta leader of the party has summoned the provincial executive of the people of Canada to Edmonton within the next few days to discuss the course of action to be taken.

In the meantime Mr. Duggan has long directed telephone calls in for both Premier Bennett and Mr. Stevens asking for the full particulars of the situation from them.

Mr. Duggan stated that "The value of his work in the great cause of the people of Canada overshadows any technical indiscretions and which in my judgment has been grossly exaggerated. Mr. Stevens has interpreted the view point of the Conservative party in this province and is entitled to our unqualified support."

should be no fear of consequences. It is not my place that the investigation revealed appalling conditions which imposed suffering on thousands of our people.

PROBE IS NEEDED

The conditions revealed warranted a still more searching enquiry and remedial action. I took the stand from the outset that this policy must be followed. If it is different from some of my colleagues that cannot be helped. It is essential, however, that the investigation should have the unqualified support and co-operation of the cabinet. When it became undeniably clear that this could not be counted on, there was no other alternative for me than my resignation from the cabinet.

"I deeply regret it has become necessary to take this step. It was not easy to make such a decision, but in view of my known attitude, in my opinion, I could not do otherwise."

Police Court

Three Montreal youths, whose eagerness to listen to Communist advice to disregard counsel of the court and to spurn the aid of the Salvation Army, found their "Red" friends of little use Saturday morning, when Magistrate Col. F. C. H. Primrose remanded them into custody to Monday on charges of obtaining food by fraud.

Ordering meals and refusing to pay, the trio had already entered pleas of guilty and arrangements had been completed whereby the Salvation Army would get them back to Montreal, when court remanded them for sentence to the end of the docket Friday. Coming back again, they announced that Communist friends had advised them to fight the court.

Adjourning the case to Saturday, Col. Primrose advised the boys they would have to take the responsibility of their friends' advice and act

Mr. World Buyer Does Not Buy For Cash

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

The above title contains the fundamental of commerce. The reason Mr. World-Buyer does not buy for cash is because he has no cash to buy with unless, and until he sells his own commodities.

The basis of all world deadlocks of commerce is due to refusal to believe in, and not to believe in the application of the above law to commerce; as well domestic as international.

There is no such thing as a Canadian buyer or an English buyer or any other kind of a local buyer. Every buyer, whether white or black or brown, is a world-buyer who spends what money he can get by selling his products or his labor for what he needs or wants.

It follows that any nation which passes laws to prevent its nationals dealing with the world puts its people into a commercial jail. As soon as a tariff gets higher than a revenue measure—is a tariff for revenue but no better than any other form of tax—the people of the nation enacting the high tariff are shut out from prosperity by a barred-world effect. When enough nations enact high tariffs we have a world deadlock.

It took an enormous force to upset the financial structure of the United States; but a world deadlock did a complete job with neatness and despatch.

The world deadlock melted all real estate values in Canada more quickly than a warm wind could melt a snowfall; homes, farms, and business properties lost their rental and selling values when world trade became deadlocked.

There is no such thing as an Empire Trade or any other kind of a trade with any adjective in front of it. The only trade there is comes from the aggregate success of the vast number of individuals each of whom is a Mr. World-Buyer.

So long as the nations continue the policy of keeping three-quarters of the population of the world in a condition of having no buying-power, there will be no Empire Trade or any other kind of trade which will keep suffering, unemployment and destitution out of any national life; every nation will suffer from its own cause.

The immediately necessary thing is to break the world deadlock. Any nation can do it by making an offer of reciprocity to the whole world. No nation can do it by any halfway measure of specially selected trade allies. It is an all or nothing proposition: trading world-wide on an unqualified basis, or no trade at all.

The old description of a government as being a despotism tempered by assassination, is a true description of a trade deadlock, because the only blow-up in a murderous war in which the taking of human life is the prime factor.

Reciprocity in world trade and on a world-wide basis is the only factor of safety against war and unemployment and successive consuming deflations. Miracle-working politicians whose countries do not trade freely, clamor for reciprocity, which never put any food in the pantry. You ought to know this by this time.

Advocating world reciprocity will never get a writer or a talker onto the public payroll or into high office; but what world reciprocity will do for you is to restore the value of your real estate, whether it be home, farm or business block; re-open world markets for your products; and create a demand for your labor.

There are things you never can get any other way; because all real constructive successes in this world are made by using the multitudes of individual efforts in a building-up force, and it takes all the individual efforts in the world to maintain trade.

A lady we all know well is a woman who saves her smiles and bright remarks for the evening party, her club, her chance meetings, her neighbors.

In the house she is grim, glum, and grumpy. She is a woman who cooks good meals and sees to it that their hours are regular. She is kind enough, too, and intermittently loving.

ST. ANDREWS CHURCH NOW COMES OF AGE

Anniversary Services Com- memorate 21 Years Of Activity

St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on Sunday will commemorate its 21st anniversary and there will continue until Monday, November 5. Invitations have gone out to former members of the congregation, now scattered in many sections of the district and province, to attend and a goodly representation is assured.

The commemoration proper will commence at 11 a.m. on Sunday with a communion service. In the evening Rev. A. R. Osborn, M.A., D.D., will conduct the service.

The celebrations will be continued into Monday, with a Sunday school song limited for 8 p.m. and a program will take place at 8 p.m. There will be no further events until following Friday when the Women's Missionary Society program will be held.

The observances will reach a climax on Sunday, November 4, when, at the 11 a.m. service, Rev. J. S. Sherrill, M.A., D.D., moderator of the general assembly, will occupy the pulpit. Dr. Sherrill's visit is being awaited with expectation by the congregation.

At 1:30 p.m. on the same day, Miss Mary Hill will conduct a Sunday school class. At the 7:30 p.m. service Rev. F. S. McCall, D.D., will occupy the pulpit. The following day, November 5, the celebrations will be concluded with a large anniversary supper at 6 p.m. and a program starting at 8 p.m.

The building of St. Andrew's church is replete with history. This city, representative of the East and a collapse thereof in the period 1911-1913. People came crowding into the capital from the old land, by the hundreds, camping on the river banks and in wide open spaces. Throughout the city construction of homes proceeded rapidly.

In October, 1913, Rev. F. D. Roxburgh was called from Glenora to become the minister of the Presbyterian church residing in the northern section of the city. His first service was held on October 13, 1913, in a room erected on lots donated by DeLaurier Bros. on the corner of 10th and Grosvenor. Fifteen people made up the first congregation and 15 children were present. The first service was held in the first of the following year there was a membership of 38, with a session board of management and ladies' aid.

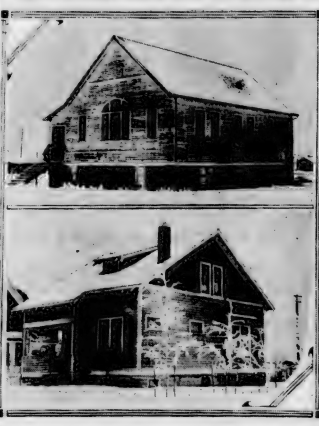

Plans were made for a more substantial place of worship and on May 31, 1914, the church building 60 feet by 48 feet was dedicated at a cost of $2400 and was dedicated by the late Dr. G. G. McQueen, assisted by Rev. E. D. Dacles and Rev. C. D. Campbell. Then came the year of the great fire, which destroyed the building and the church was rebuilt on the same site.

The union movement of 1928 brought about a division in the ranks of the congregation, but a year later decided to remain in the Presbyterian church, changing the name to St. Andrew's. The building was moved to the present site and placed on a substantial foundation. The transfer was made as if by magic.

On Saturday night, 50 houses drew the building on sleighs across the streets, while telephone disconnections, employed men cut out lines out of the way. The building was moved to the present site and placed on a substantial foundation. The transfer was made as if by magic.

During the 21 years of the church's history, 1000 members have been ministered by Rev. F. D. Roxburgh, who has welcomed 52 persons into church membership and 207 children have been baptised.

The Christian's Standard of Life ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Ephesians 4:17-5:1.

Sometimes in the year 62, St. Paul wrote from his prison in Rome to the Christians in the church he has established at Ephesus some years before. In this letter he wrote first of the Christian doctrine and then of the kind of lives Christians should live.

Paul urges us to put off living as the world does, and to live as the Christians should. He says: "If ye have heard Him and were taught in Him, even as truth is in Jesus."

Paul urged the benefits of temperance, saying "Be ye not foolish but understand what the will of the Lord is. And be not drunken with wine, wherein is riot, but be filled with the Spirit."

These standards Paul urges will not rob our lives of joy but rather set us speaking one to another in praise and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody with your heart to the Lord; giving thanks always for all things in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Stepping Along

By DON THOMSON

A Weekly Column Dedicated to the Youth of Alberta by the Edmonton Young Men's Liberal Club.

IN LAST week's column we endeavored to stress the crying need for diversification of industry in this province. We pointed out what such a policy would mean to the younger generation of Alberta.

This week we wish to discuss in that connection, at least one practical proposal—an example of what might well be done to strengthen our provincial industrial fabric and to develop our natural resources.

For instance, the immense coal deposits in this province, Alberta, contain within its borders not less than a million tons of coal, and a vast variety of minerals. But it is, on the whole, a decidedly rural type of coal and in our efforts to market it elsewhere for heating purposes, we find tremendous difficulty meeting foreign antiproduct competition.

The latter is a much harder coal, with less ash content and gives off considerably more heat than the same variety of Alberta lignite.

OTHER obstacles, such as the prohibitive freight rates and the paucity of coal for domestic purposes, all tend to make it most discouraging.

But there remains another and, to the way of our young people, more profitable and sensible method of utilizing these resources.

It is to use the coal in a more profitable and sensible method of utilizing these resources.

It is to use the coal in a more profitable and sensible method of utilizing these resources.

Season Celebrated With Curious Customs Throughout the World

By DR. A. M. HARDING, Ph.D.

University of Alberta

Why do we celebrate Halloween? When and by whom was it first celebrated? What is the origin of the curious customs connected with it? Why do spirits "walk" on Halloween?

The answers to these questions are furnished by the ancient science of astronomy, which regulated all calendars and festivals by means of the stars. This festival was first celebrated by ancient peoples at a time when the stars, by their slow rotation around the poles, formed the only clock in existence and by their daily shift with reference to the sun, fixed the seasons and the calendar.

If one will study the calendar of ancient peoples, we can see where they celebrated any festival which resembles our Halloween.

The search for the origin of Halloween goes back to the beginning of civilization; back to the period when our ancestors had nothing to do but to look after their flocks and herds during the winter months.

The festival of Halloween was during the festival of Halloween was determined by the stars.

ORIGIN OF FLEAHEADS

One of the chief hunters of ancient times was Orion, the son of Neptune. On this handsome giant met the seven nymphs of Diana in the forest and immediately pursued them. Knowing that he would soon overtake them, they called upon the gods for help and were changed into seven snow-white doves, which flew into the sky and were there transformed into the seven bright stars which now form the constellation of Orion.

The Pleiades, the ancient name for the seven stars, which were transformed into the seven bright stars which now form the constellation of Orion.

Youth's Club Activities

By RICK JOHNSON

A Weekly Column Dedicated to the Youth of Alberta by the Edmonton Young Men's Liberal Club.

IN LAST week's column we endeavored to stress the crying need for diversification of industry in this province. We pointed out what such a policy would mean to the younger generation of Alberta.

This week we wish to discuss in that connection, at least one practical proposal—an example of what might well be done to strengthen our provincial industrial fabric and to develop our natural resources.

For instance, the immense coal deposits in this province, Alberta, contain within its borders not less than a million tons of coal, and a vast variety of minerals. But it is, on the whole, a decidedly rural type of coal and in our efforts to market it elsewhere for heating purposes, we find tremendous difficulty meeting foreign antiproduct competition.

The latter is a much harder coal, with less ash content and gives off considerably more heat than the same variety of Alberta lignite.

OTHER obstacles, such as the prohibitive freight rates and the paucity of coal for domestic purposes, all tend to make it most discouraging.

But there remains another and, to the way of our young people, more profitable and sensible method of utilizing these resources.

It is to use the coal in a more profitable and sensible method of utilizing these resources.

DECADES OF PROGRESS
1895-1904
Victorian Period Closes
The last decade of Queen Victoria's long reign saw business rise from a trough of depression on an advancing wave of prosperity. Canada's century was dawning.

In 1897, the year of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee, Mr. J. M. Stewart, General Manager of the Bank, closed his address to the shareholders at the annual meeting with these words:

"We are meeting today with a few hours of the sixtieth anniversary of His Most Gracious Majesty's reign. The success we as a bank have met with in the past reign calls for an expression of gratitude."

He made no apology for the fact that the year's profits had been the smallest in nine years and gave no evidence of the slightest faith in the future. His judgment was sustained by event, for three years later profits had doubled.

Twenty-one new branches were opened during the two-year period, making a total of thirty-two. The deposits had risen to sixteen millions in 1894 to thirty and one-half millions in 1904, and the Bank was now doing business in all the provinces from Montreal to Vancouver. Caution went hand in hand with enterprise. Canada's century was dawning, but prudence and the Bank was moving with it.

Eaton Girls Have Victory Over Dodgers

King Edward Colleens Also Triumph in Second Hopscotch

A pair of interesting battles were witnessed in the City girls basketball league at the University of British Columbia on Friday. The Eaton girls secured their first victory of the season by coming from behind to defeat the Dodgers 19-13 and the King Edward Park Colleens turned back the New Method Laundry hopscotch team.

Apparently on the road to victory as a result of their big lead secured in the early stages of the game, the Dodgers were handed a quarter by coming from behind to defeat the Eaton girls in the final quarters, when they uncovered a wild scoring attack to overcome their lead and went on to score a win.

This battle was the feature of the evening's entertainment as the girls fought up a fine hopscotch game and the rally of the store girls earned the spotlight of the program.

STORE GIRLS RALLY The Dodgers opened the initial quarter with a score of 19-13 and while they held their rivals to a single basket and increased their lead another two points in the second period when they counted four markers to two made by their opponents.

A late scoring spree also featured the third period that the store girls really got going and staged an attack that saw them leading by one point at the end of the quarter. However, they failed to play in front for any length of time as the Dodgers again assumed the lead when Mills slipped in a long shot from mid-court. The latter quieted matters by hitting a three-point shot that enabled them to take the lead.

All members of the Eaton club played a good game, with Cummings, Brown and Montgomery being the main cogs in the Dodgers' defeat. Marty and Stevenson always looked good for the losing squad.

A late scoring spree also featured the second battle of the town end as the King Edward Colleens went wild in the last couple of quarters to pile up a big margin over the New Method hopscotch. They in the attack the girls had fought an evenly matched game.

Red Hot Jazz And Night Clubs New Rage Now Sweeping All Over Russia

While Soviet Children Discover Delightful Thing Called "Candy"

By CORALIE VAN PAASEN

MOSCOW, Oct. 27.—Last year young Russia discovered the soda fountain. This year the party and candy shops are the great novelty. Children and young people up to the hills have never seen candy or party in their lives. They stand in droves before the stores, waiting for the laughing and commotion. The attendants can't hand out the sticky stuff fast enough. They'll use nearly a dozen of these dimes to limit the sale, else they'll find the hospitals will be full. The Russians are in many things like Americans. They easily go to excess.

For instance, there is a wave of jazz music sweeping Russia just now. They go crazy about it. Their own folk-music is infinitely more beautiful. But they have discovered jazz, or rather the tan has been taken off jazz (formerly it was classed as a sample of bourgeois decay) and like all other new things it is worked to the limit. The real reason is that two new factories turning out musical instruments began operating and the saxophone and the tom-tom are coming into the market and are pushing the old balalaika in the background for the time being. Since every Russian is a cultural-bourgeois, the result is obvious: everybody is doing it. They started with the zumba here, which is also the Prince of Wales favorite, and not with the turkey-trot. The big headquarters on the Moskva river below the Kremlin right in front of the British embassy have been turned into night clubs.

SHOPS TO NIGHT CLUBS

They are richly endowed with gramophones, recorders, and the most up-to-date dancing apparatus. And plenty of live bands of all sorts, and even a band of American soldiers. The Russians resemble the Americans. They don't tip their liquor, they pour it. They don't calculate, which proves, if anything, that they are not as calculating as they are supposed to be. There was one of these bands in the main dining room that I saw the first post-revolutionary evening. Worn by a man, they were women in the company of some reds and privates. The man was a sort of plant angora, very elegant and with his hair very elegant and worn with exceptional grace. I tried to meet one of the gals to find out, if possible, what the occupant of the place was in the evening. He was a chat and she told me she was a "rounder" in a textile mill where she looked after 25 looms just imported from England. Her monthly wages were $500 Russian. She said she was not a member of the party and had no intention of becoming one. She was going out with a friend, a soldier, but her mother would not have her marry a Comintern member. but was the fact that some ardent business man had begun to sell tickets to see the show?

"You mean private initiative infringed upon the government theatre monopoly?" My last question made him laugh till he had to hold his sides.

The incident may be true or not. It sounds fishy to me, for the Russians of all classes are real communists and were so even in the old days. They never had that suspicion and that poor benighted attitude to the right of the foreigner and the alien which is the chief stock-in-trade for lack of constructive ideas—of our professional burban-boys. There always were 127 nationalities in the czarist empire and people were used to the sight of strange dress and strange customs.

Since the revolution the masses have come greatly developed this international point of view and they have an intense pride. They don't like it when a stranger sees anything disgraceful that might damage the prestige of their country. I happened to see two

Another incident of this kind was a drunken peasant who reeled along with a vodka bottle in his hand. I stood looking at him; it was the first drunk and the only one I saw in that vast city of 2,000,000 inhabitants. As I stood looking someone came up to me to explain.

"Please understand, he is an old peasant. It is hard for him to leave his vodka. He has been used to drink all his life. Please do not think all our peasants are that way."

"I should hope not," I said. "No," said the person who had escorted me. "Five million peasants already belong to the lot of teetotalers. The government is educating them that alcohol is poison and belittles the brain."

"Would it not be better to forbid the sale of alcohol?" I asked.

"No," he said, "we must get the people used to it. Then there we had a debate on prohibition.
